Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-6, drawn to a multi-layer nonwoven web, classified in class 442, subclass 381.
 - II. Claim 7, drawn to a method of forming a multi-layer nonwoven fabric, classified in class 156, subclass various.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions II and I are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the product can be made by another method comprising bonding the carded web and airlaid web first, then bonding another carded web to the laminate.
3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
4. During a telephone conversation with Ian Robinson on 1/12/02 a provisional election was made without traverse to prosecute the invention of group I, claims 1-6. Affirmation of this election must be made by applicant in replying to this Office action. Claim 7 is withdrawn from further consideration by the examiner, 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a non-elected invention.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reader et al (5883026).

Reader is concerned with the creation of a multi-layer nonwoven web comprising three layers (abstract). Reader teaches the fabrics to be formed from a mixture of conjugate fibers and cellulose fibers in applicant's claimed percentages (col. 2, lines 44-60, col. 5, lines 1-14, and col. 6, lines 1-5). Reader teaches the layers to be positioned in a face-to-face relationship and "bound" to adjacent layers at various "portions" (col. 3, lines 33-34). Reader also refers to these layers as being "laminated" together; however, there does not seem to be an express teaching of discrete bond sites. Based on Reader's suggestions it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to laminate the layers with discrete bonds. The skilled artisan would have been motivated to utilize discrete bond sites by the desire to achieve sufficient bonding without sacrificing softness, which occurs with total bonding.

With respect to claim 2, Reader teaches the webs to have a "similar" composition (col. 3, lines 37-38). It would have been obvious to form the layers with identical composition by the desire to simplify the production process.

With respect to claims 3-5, it would have been obvious to modify the basis weights of the webs, since such a modification would have involved a mere change in the size of a component. A change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955). The skilled artisan would have been motivated to alter the size of the webs by the desire to optimize the absorbent and strike through properties of the laminate.
